Laptop: good for society

"Imagine that you're in class, and you need to do some research, but there is only one computer. Twenty five other kids are already in line. If you had a laptop you could do your research right then and there." The district should provide a laptop for all students. If every student had a laptop, they would be prepared for college, they would stay ahead of society, and there would be less paper which means less trees cut down.

An important part of your child's life is college. With a laptop they would be prepared for college, because in college you can buy a CD, than buying those big heavy bulky books, and then have to carry them all around. The laptop can fit in its own bag, and that's it no extra bag to carry books in. For example, since 2001, 91% of America says "laptops are easy to carry, easy to transport and takes up less space." Why carry around expensive, heavy, bulky, books?

Like any other teacher, they would want their students to stay ahead of society, because society moves fast. For example, in 1970: disco, 1980: groovy stuff. Society moves fast. Why let your child/children/student fall behind in society?

An important part of the planet is that it's healthy and laptops would help the earth be healthy, because there will be less paper which means less trees getting cut down. We need trees to breath. Since paper comes from trees, less paper will be used, and fewer trees cut down. For example, on average, 85% of students using laptops will cut down on paper usage, which means a healthier earth. Why would you kill the planet you live on?

If you value having your child ahead of society, and having a smarter America, then start a potation. Take it to your local school board.
